Mr. Bingham replied that in speaking of politicians of Virginia, he wished to say the South had men superior to such marrow-sighted, selfish mercenary prejudices, but unhappily the gentle-man from Virginia is not one of them.

Mr Smith, after reading the above, said it would be observed the broad deminiciation of the would be observed the broad deminiciation of the cutive South, and especially the great body of people are necessed of being narrow, bigoted, selfish, and mercenary, and that he (Smith) was one of them; that he understood Mr. Bingham as one of them; that he nederstood Mr. Bingham as meaning what he said.

Mr. B.—I meant what I said.

Mr Smith—It is labe, deliberate enlumnions. Mr. Bingham replied that the gent's declara-on was not very likely to eause him to strike out the facts of history. What he said he stood by. He repeated what he had said as to the former movement in Virginia to abolish the slave system; but for the last thirty years the sectional strite has been continued by making war upon the great and heneficent policy of free labor. Every one knew it to be true that no man could to-day stand up in the Legislature of Virginia and express his anti-slavery sentiments as were avowed there in 1852. Why was Mr. Upderwood driven away? Where was the gentlemen then (Smith), who was auxious to vindicate the right of free He knew that a large mob assembled in Wheeling to suppress a peaceable meeting calbut to effect a Republican organization. He repeated what he spake, of politicians of the South. He did not include every body in the South, but those He who give direction to public opinion. The apposition to free labor rests on nothing but a mercen ary formulation. It was the old story of Alexan der the coppersmith. The class of men to which he referred is superior to all such practices. They constitute a large majority in the Southern States, but unfortunately they have not the power which is conferred by wealth and position, and, therefore, cannot make themselves felt.

Mr. Smith, of Va., returned to the charge, in sisting that he had given a proper interpretation to Mr. Bingham's remarks—If Mr. Bingham had spoken of politicians merely, he /Mr. S.) would othave a wood to say; but if he speke of the great hody of Virginia, in view of what Virginia figinians as selfish and mercenary? The min who brings such a charge is guilty of uttning a culumny. He defended Virginia for preventing persons from going into that Commonwealth, with torch in hand, to five her social and political Sfree. He said that Mr. Underwood was treated with great del casy, and reminded the gentle-in in that there were in ides in Ohio and violations of law, and that the Governor of that State refused to surrender a witness to the demands of justice. Were they to have lectures on propriety from such a source? He simply wanted to reply to an attack on his State and the South generally.

Mr. Bingham replied that the gentleman drew on his fancy for his facts and on his imagination for his arguments, and in the course of his ra-marks referred to the opinions of George Mason and Governor McDowell, of less than 30 years ago, in lavor of emancipation. He repudiated the charge that he did injustice to Virginia, and eulogized that State.

Mr. Smith rejoined that he knew Mr. McDowell while he was Governor of the Commonwealth his opinions underwent a change and he was not elected because he was a friend of emancipation.

Mr. Florence moved that when the House adjourn it be till Monday, in order that gentleman may attend to business at the Departments. There was an understanding that no Legislative business should be transacted.

The anc gloried in the contemplation of the vast-ress of his country—the other thought it necessory to watch with closest scrutiny, if not sus-picion, the delicate relations of the different members. Mr. Clay, as the native of one State and the adopted child of another, considered the di-visions between the States as lines which policy section of the body politic, tracing its wonderful, and to him too often its fearful anatomy; the other sought to colue it with health and strength, make it instinct with the life and radiant with Or, if I may add another illustration, the South Carolinian, in his more hopeful moments regarded the Union as a Constellation, deriving its luster and grandeur from the brightness of each partieular star; the Kentuckian found the image of his country in some grand river, like our giant Missi-sippi, each valley sending its rill, and lolty mountains speeding their torrents to swell its rapid tide. On its hanks he saw fertile fields and happy homesteads—the blended sounds of manifild industry went up from splemlid villages and stately eities—on its bosom were countless vessels belen with the products and fabrics of a land framed in the prodigalist of nature—and thus crowned with the traphics of Agriculture and of Art, he saw it rushing to sea, and delivering to white winged commerce the bread to feed and the raiment to clothe a worll.

WHEREAS, It has been made known to me that LENA IL SNAIP was, on the night of the 14th instant, murdered by some unknown person or persons, in the county of deferson:

Now, therefore, I, BERIAH MAGOFFIN, Governur of the Commonwealth aforesaid, do hereby offer a regulatious which have reference to new associations.

10. In mustering companies into the State Gand priority will be given, when practicable, to existing companies, and to the dates of application; but it results from the dispersed condition of the companies into the State mustering some of the more distant companies into the Guard. Such companies into the Guard. Such companies are assared, however, that every means will be taken to expedice the date of their complete organization. The deha can be profitably employed by them in the elementary drill of the school of the soldier.

11. The militury law prescribes that the State Guard shall be a light corps, and adopts for the infantry the system of instruction pursued in the United States Array, knawn as "Hardee's Ride and Light Infantry Tactics." Every officer will find it necessary to provide himself with a copy, in addition to one which will be issued as public property to each company on its organization.

12. Companies which have not already provided a uniform are advised to delay final action thereou for a few weeks, as the Governor and Commander-in-Chief is considering the propriety of adopting a uniform for the entire corps.

13. The Inspector General hopes that every member, in entering the Kentucky State Guard, will be inspired by the feeling which finds its expression in the control of the State Guard, will be obligation of duty that we sign, and which, he obligation of duty that we sign, and which, he ber, in entering the Kentucky State Guard, will be inspired by the feeling which finds its expression in the obligation of duty that we sign, and which, he prists, will lead to the formation of a body of citizen soldiers worthy to succeed those who have already reflected honor on the name of kentucky.
